

CROSSFIRE

THE STUART LITTLE BAND

Here's an entertainment turn-on for you: I caught a performance not too long ago by a... group that's so good I just have to tell you about it. They're called the STUART LITTLE BAND, after that astonishing mouse that could do anything, and the title is really appropriate. They do folk-type stuff, jazzy stuff, rock... with bassist Steve Solari Jr. carrying rhythm; the rest of the group is made up of David Kemp on lead guitar, Scott Liggett on rhythm guitar, and flutist David Hoiem.... The group often features a superb mime artist named BERNARD BANG, and what he does to enhance the band's already fine music is a sight to behold. Bernard interprets the music, sometimes comically, sometimes tragically, but always beautifully. The best thing about the group's music, which, by the way, is all original, is that you enjoy it in the back of your mind or bring it up front and pay close attention, and get even more out of it.... Stuart Little is bound to be the mouse that roared.

Mr. Bang performs onstage with the STUART LITTLE BAND, his pieces in mime complement and amplify the content and the mood of the music. Mr. Bang also performs as a solo in the classical tradition of mime.

SHIRE ROAD PUB

the Beau Brummels

The Shire Road Pub proudly presents The Beau Brummels for two shows nightly, February 13th thru 16th. News of this event will stir the interest of those people who knew the music of the Beau Brummels at the time "Laugh Laugh" and "Just A Little" were popular not only in Sacramento but in the rest of this country as well. The Beau Brummels now work with that same musical unity that generated enthusiasm and fine record albums a few years back, but it is the music of today that brings the Brummels together again.

Ron Elliott is the man behind the music of the Beau Brummels, continuing to provide most of the words and melodies, while the entire band is responsible for the sound of the Brummels. That sound still comes from the five musicians who started the Beau Brummels in 1964: Ron Elliott, tasty songwriter and second lead guitarist; tall blond John Petersen at drums and percussion; Ron Meagher, originally the Brummels' bassist now playing lead guitar; Irish Doc Milligan now on bass; and the man who sings the songs with energy and expression, Sal Valentino, round out the Beau Brummels then and now.

Long time fans of the Brummels will not be disappointed in seeing them now since their best material from past albums has been selected to be performed on stage, but the emphasis is on the present. In November of 1973, Ron Elliott came north from Los Angeles to discuss Beau Brummels with Valentino. Sal was in the process of dissolving the Valentino Band to try something with more musical variety. Elliott's ideas blended with Sal's and the nearly fifteen new songs Ron brought with him made them decide the time was right to carry out the idea. The other three original Brummels were contacted and found the plan exciting. Their own musical talents were in need of new direction. All five musicians decided to work together again to complete a circle and starts a new time for the Beau Brummels.

Each show at Shire Road will open with an acoustic trio featuring Sal Valentino and Ron Elliott singing and playing guitar. The third member of the trio is Miss Lydia Moreno, whose voice has sung solo and blended with Sal's since the first days of the international caravan that gave birth to Stoneground. This opening acoustic set of music will afford the many fans of Lydia Moreno the chance to hear her sing the songs of Valentino and Elliott as well as whatever others she chooses to let go with. An exciting mellow opening to an evening with the Beau Brummels.

This initial Beau Brummels appearance live at the Shire Road Pub in Fair Oaks happens February 13th thru 16th for two shows nightly at 7:30 PM and 11:00 PM. Tickets are $3.50 in advance at all College Hi Shops and at the Shire Road Pub. Come out and enjoy what promises to be something big...you'll even laugh, just a little.
